As a resident of Lincoln since 1967, Nick Cusick has been an influential member of the community. Nick is the co-founder and CEO of IMSCORP, a Lincoln-based holding company that has three wholly owned manufacturing subsidiaries and three additional business units with a total employment of approximately 200.

Founded as Industrial Machine Specialties in 1974 in Lincoln, Nebraska, by former high school friends Elmer Wessel and Nick Cusick, IMSCORP has served its industrial client base for over 35 years. Throughout the 35-plus years of continual ownership, the company has grown internally and spawned successful sister companies due in large part to the creativity of its staff and the entrepreneurial spirit of its owners.

With an MBA from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Nick brings his business experience and wisdom to a variety of civic volunteer activities. His experience includes serving as the Board Chair of the Foundation for Lincoln Public Schools, Secretary of the BryanLGH Medical Center Board, Chair of Junior Achievement of Lincoln Board of Trustees and is the past chair of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors. Other activities include the Trustees of Pius X High School Foundation, Campaign Chair of St. Michael Catholic Capital Campaign, United Way Campaign Cabinet, and Community Health Charities of Nebraska Board. He's passionate about teaching young students about entrepreneurship and business to third graders as he has volunteered the last 15 years with Junior Achievement.

Nick and his wife, Ann, have four daughters and two granddaughters. Hobbies include fishing, golf, hunting and recently international travel.
